

Professional Development Workshop for Teachers

Break Glass: Facilitating Conversations to End Hate

Offered by Longwood Center for the Visual Arts in conjunction with the Robert Russa Moton Museum, the Virginia Holocaust Museum and the Virginia Center for Inclusive Communities.

You are invited to attend Break Glass: Facilitating Conversations to End Hate, a professional development workshop for K – 12 public, private and home school educators.

In conjunction with the LCVA's Break Glass: The Art of V.L. Cox – A Conversation to End Hate exhibition, this workshop will provide educators with the tools to engage students in a dialog about diversity and social awareness as it relates to their curriculum and the everyday lives of students. See flyer for more details.

When: Tuesday, February 13th, 2018 9:00 am – 3:30 pm

Where: Longwood Center for the Visual Arts

Payment: Cash, personal check or school check
Checks should be made out to: Longwood University Foundation.

Mail to: Longwood Center for the Visual Arts
129 North Main St. Farmville, VA 23901

Questions: Please contact Mindy Pierson, Longwood Center for the Visual Arts School Programs Educator at the email or phone number below.

COUNT ME IN!

Break Glass: Facilitating Conversations to End Hate

Please clearly PRINT the following information:

Name: _____

School Information:

Please circle: Elementary Middle High

Grade Level: _____

County: _____

School #1: _____

Address: _____

Phone: (____) _____

Second School Information if Applicable:

School #2: _____

Address: _____

Phone: (____) _____

FAX: _____

Email: _____

Payment Information:

Check enclosed: _____ Check # _____

Check will be sent from school: _____

Pay day of: _____

The LONGWOOD
CENTER for the
VISUAL ARTS

129 North Main Street
Farmville, Virginia 23901

Longwood Center for the Visual Arts

Phone: 434-395-2941 or 434-395-2206

Email: piersonms@longwood.edu

Website: www.lcva.longwood.edu

Fax: 434-395-4961